Oberlin’s Jewish problem

New York Times columnist Frank Bruni noted that the anti-Semitism that exists today in America is not the same as the anti-Semitism that took place during the Holocaust. He argues that we need to learn more about the Holocaust in order to understand modern-day anti-Semitism.

Correction

In last week’s cover story “Serving healthy, tasty food,” the wrong author description ran with the article. It should have been that of Lauren Kramer.